Khrushchev Cheered By Finn People

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, jaunty and jovial, came to wish President Urho Kekkonen a happy birthday Friday and won cheers and smiles from Finnish crowds.

The Kremlin leader declared there was nothing secret about the purpose of his visit. "We only came to see a good neighbor," he said.

Khrushchev rolled in on a so-called green train with a yellow and red engine. He seemed in a good mood despite the fact that Western world political leaders were showing no signs of joining his boom for a new summit round at the United Nations in New York after the fiasco at Paris in mid-May.

Opens Sept. 20

Khrushchev and the leaders of Communist members of the United Nations have announced they will head delegations to the General Assembly opening in New York Sept. 20.

Newsman pined Khrushchev with questions about his United Nations plans when his train reached the Finnish border.

"What would you say if Eisenhower and Macmillan also go to New York?" a reporter asked.

"It would be good," Khrushchev replied.

Asked specifically if he knows whether President Eisenhower might attend, Khrushchev said: "I don't know but I wish he could be there. In any case it won't be a summit conference as this is the General Assembly."

But neither Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan nor any other high Western leaders gave any indication they would be there while Khrushchev is.

Cool Reaction

The first reaction from Red China to Khrushchev's U.N. plans also was cool. Hong Kong's Communist New Evening Post said Khrushchev would be wasting his time even if all other heads of government would attend. China's Mao Tse-tung has been opposed to East-West summit parleys all along.

For Khrushchev's arrival, Helsinki's central station was flooded with about 250 yards of bright red carpet hastily put down after a sopping shower. About 8,000 people outside the station gave a burst of cheers. But the welcome was warm and not demonstrative, just as Finns had said it would be.

Khrushchev was friendly and cordial to Kekkonen, who celebrates his 60th birthday Saturday.

Ike Nominees Not Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five of President Eisenhower's nominations to federal regulatory agencies were left unconfirmed by the Democratic-controlled Senate when Congress adjourned Thursday night.

Also left buried in committee were 913 postmaster nominations, appointment of an assistant attorney general, four District Court judges, and a member of the National Labor Relations Board.

Nixon Leg Improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon Friday began exercising his infected left leg which doctors say has shown steady improvement since he was admitted to Walter Reed Army Hospital on Monday.

Quill Charges Pressure On Him To Settle Strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Michael Quill, fiery leader of the Transport Workers Union whose 15,000 members shut down the Pennsylvania Railroad, said Friday he was "under terrific pressure" to settle the walkout quickly.

But Quill, blaming the railroad completely for starting the strike which has idled over 75,000 persons in 13 states and the District of Columbia, said he has made his demands and won't budge.

The TWU and the System Federation Union, with 5,000 members, struck America's largest railroad Thursday, stopping every PRR train for the first time in 114 years.

Dailroad Started

Quill told a news conference the PRR "started the strike and is refusing to settle it."

"We would like to conclude an honorable agreement with the railroad as soon as possible, but we are sitting pat and we will not compromise any further," he added.

James M. Symes, PR board chairman, said at a later news meeting, "Settlement depends on the reasonableness of Mr. Quill. If he is in a mood of standing or sitting pat, it could be a long strike."

The dispute that forced the strike goes back more than three years. It revolves around TWU demands for work classification guarantees and job security. It does not involve wages.

Main Issue Quill

Symes put it this way: "The main issue is Mr. Quill wants us to agree to a lot of rules which would make unnecessary jobs."

Then he wants other rules to guarantee protection for these jobs which were unnecessary in the first place."

Six governors and 11 mayors, in a joint telegram to the unions and the railroad, said the strike has caused "serious economic impact and public inconvenience" and urged "the earliest possible settlement... and that should be well before this weekend is over."

The governors of Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Delaware, New Jersey and Maryland joined the mayors of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Baltimore, St. Louis, New York, Johnstown, Altoona and Lancaster, Pa.; Columbus, Ohio, and Indianapolis in the telegram to Quill and Symes.

"The public interest transcends that of either party," it said, calling for continuous negotiations until settlement.

Quill said he is going to Altoona, Pa., where the PRR has its largest shops, Saturday afternoon to address 6,000 strikers and their families. He challenged, by telegram, the PRR president to go with him and debate the issues.

President Allen J. Greenough rejected the request, asserting he could "see nothing to be gained... an audience in Altoona can't settle this strike. It will have to be settled at the bargaining table."

Meantime, federal mediator Francis O'Neill Jr. huddled with management representatives in his continuing, but still unsuccessful, effort to find a route to settlement. He had met separately Thursday with union officials. He said he hoped to arrange a joint meeting Saturday.

Quill, in his telegram to Greenough, charged the PRR head with failing to sit down at the bargaining table the past three days and with calling the strike "on television six hours before the strike deadline."

Greenough replied this was nonsense, noting, "We don't call strikes."

Dulls Effects

The Labor Day weekend, which extends through Monday, dulled any immediate economic effects of the walkout, but for commuters and holiday travelers it means shifting to other means of transportation.

Most industries were unaffected by lack of freight shipments but Symes said "the economy will be hurt after the holiday."

Claims Finch Suggested

King said the Long Beach law firm was suggested to the federal agency by Robert H. Finch, Nixon's national campaign manager. Finch said he had no comment.

The King statement did not identify the Nixon Long Beach aide other than to say he is head of the law firm of Clock, Waestman & Clock. King himself was not available for comment.

In Long Beach, John Clock said King's statement was "ridiculous" and all charges made by him were "false and untrue."

In his statement, King described the retainer as "political payola" and said, "So far this has paid off for Nixon's campaign manager at the rate of almost $4,000 a month."

The retainer, King said, was given to the Nixon aide "by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in connection with its unjustified and irregular seizure of the 100-million-dollar Long Beach Savings & Loan Assn."

Seizure of the Long Beach firm last April 22 has been the subject of an investigation by the House subcommittee headed by Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif.), who has criticized the bank board's action.

27 Wounded In Misfire In Germany

GRAFENWOEHR, Germany (AP) — An 8-inch howitzer shell missed its practice target area and hit a U.S. Army supply tent Friday, killing 15 American soldiers and wounding 27. The accident occurred while the 3rd Armored Division was on maneuvers near the Iron Curtain.

The Army ordered an immediate investigation into what was believed to be the worst training mishap ever sustained by the 250,000 U.S. troops in West Germany.

The Army said the shell landed in a camp area, hitting a supply tent, during routine maneuvers in this training area in North Bavaria, 30 miles from Communist Czechoslovakia.

Two of the injured were in critical condition, the Army said. Three have returned to duty.

Helicopters flew the injured to Army hospitals at Nuernberg.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of their families.

The Grafenwoehr training area, a region of rolling fields and woodland, has been reserved for U.S. troop training since World War II. Located in a thinly populated part of Germany, it is off the beaten track and reachable only by narrow rural roads.

A special artillery range, with a designated target area, is one of the main features of the maneuver area. The camp sites lie far to the right of the range, normally well beyond danger.

The 3rd Armored Division troops hit by the shell had arrived at the training area the night before. The Army said the hit was at 8:35 a.m., just after morning roll call.

Tremendous

"I heard a tremendous explosion," said Lt. Joseph C. Lutz, 27, of Indianapolis, Ind., commander of the troop unit. "I saw stars and thought that I had ruptured my ear drums. There was a flash and a tremendous concussion," he continued in an Army report of the incident.

Lutz said medical corpsmen and chaplains arrived immediately after the explosion and within 10 minutes 25 ambulances were on the scene.

Later the 3rd Armored Division commander, Maj. Gen. Frederick J. Brown, issued a statement saying that preliminary investigation established "that the direct cause of the accident was the firing of one 8-inch round of artillery with a powder charge of seven, whereas the correct powder charge should have been five."

He said the accident stemmed from an overfire by Battery A, 3rd Battalion, 18th Artillery, normally stationed at Darmstadt, Germany.

Search Fails To Find Lost Camp Man

DENNIS O'CONNOR, 76, Philadelphia, was still missing from Camp William Penn after an all-day search yesterday. He disappeared Tuesday at noon from the camp near the Monroe-Pike county line.

Camp employees, State Police and game protectors will resume their search of the heavily-wooded areas near the camp this morning, a camp spokesman said last night.

A bloodhound brought from the State Police academy at Hershey was used in the search Thursday without result.

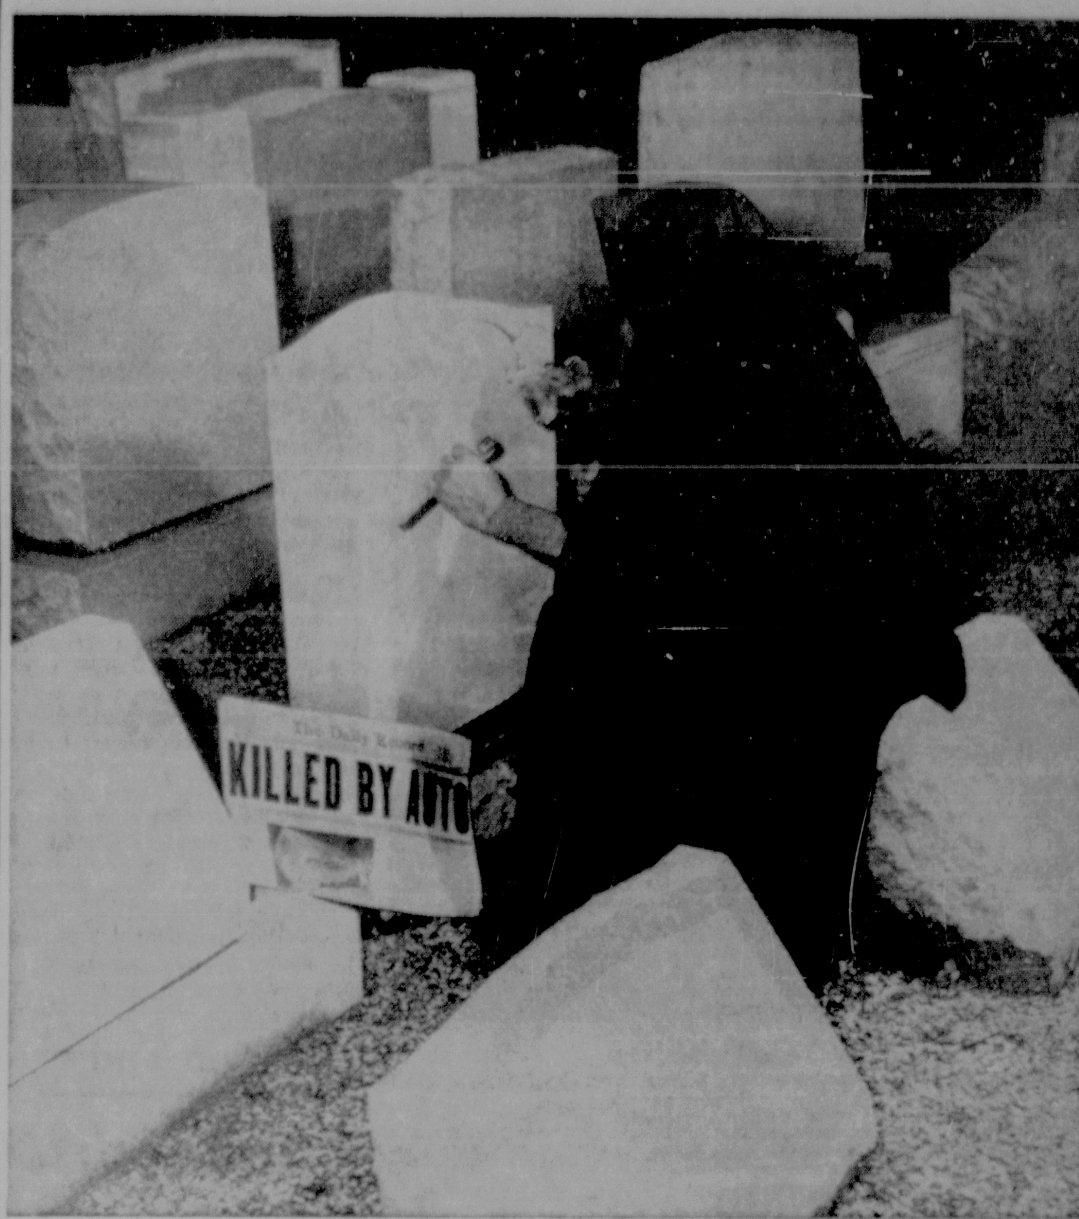

O'Connor was one of a group of 165 residents of Riverview Home for the Aged in Philadelphia who spent a week at the camp. He disappeared as the group prepared to load buses for the return journey to the city.

He is five feet eight inches tall, weighs 154 pounds, has grey hair, blue eyes and a reddish complexion. He was wearing a blue shirt, blue trousers and brown or blue canvas shoes when last seen.

Foresee 460 Deaths

U.S. Takes To Roads For Labor Day Weekend

By The Associated Press

AMERICANS by the millions hit the roads Friday for favorite holiday spots, bent on getting an early start at Labor Day weekend fun.

At 12:30 a.m. this morning only six deaths were reported. They were six in traffic accidents. In the other categories the score was: boating, 0; drowning, 0; and miscellaneous, 0.

The big influx of deaths, however, is expected to be today and Monday.

Other millions dotted the beaches, parks and recreation centers the final summer holiday—a three-day respite from the business of earning a living; a time to live it up.

Weather was ideal over much of the nation, with brisk or mild temperatures in the North and lingering summer in the South. There was a promise of sunshine in most sections.

The National Safety Council said traffic accidents could take 460 lives during the 78-hour period from 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Monday. This compares with about 330 traffic deaths for a nonholiday weekend of equal length at this season, the council said.

An Associated Press survey two weeks ago, made for comparative purposes, showed that 389 persons were killed in traffic during the nonholiday weekend period from 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 19, to midnight Monday, Aug. 22.

During this period 34 boating deaths occurred, 61 persons drowned, and 90 died in miscellaneous accidents—a total of 574. The 460 mark would be only one short of the 1951 traffic death toll, a record for any Labor Day holiday.

Last year, over Labor Day, 438 lives were lost in street and highway accidents. The over-all accident death toll was 613, including 29 killed in boating tragedies, 62 drownings not connected with boating, and 84 accident deaths from such varied causes as air crashes, electrocutions, fires, falls and accidental shootings.

The record over-all accident toll for a Labor Day weekend was 638 in 1951.

Holiday accidents have taken as many as 884 lives, the record for the post-World War II period set during the four-day Christmas observance of 1956. During that period 706 died in traffic accidents.

Smith Sentenced To Die In Chair

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Elmo Smith, 39-year-old handyman, was sentenced Friday to die in Pennsylvania's electric chair for the Christmas Holiday rape-slaying of Maryann Mitchell, a Philadelphia teenager.

An Adams County jury of nine men and three women imposed the death sentence after deliberating an hour. Thursday they found Smith, of Bridgeport, Pa., guilty of first degree murder.

Under state law, in first degree convictions, the jury hears additional testimony before fixing the penalty—life or death.

The state had asked the death penalty to make an example of Elmo Smith to deter "all others who would commit rape and murder."

"If we succumb to the death penalty," said defense attorney Gilbert P. High, "we'll not gain any stature."

The jury returned once during its deliberations to ask Judge W. C. Sheely whether it could recommend life with the stipulation: no parole.

The judge told them: "You merely have the question of determining whether the penalty shall be life imprisonment or death. You cannot attach any conditions."

The jury retired again but was back with the verdict within 10 minutes.

First Since '47

The death sentence was the first handed up in Adams County since 1947.

The judge told the jurors that in case they were worried about the severity of their decision they might find assurance in knowing that "it is not necessarily final."

He explained it could be upset in an appeal to a higher court or commuted by the State Board of Pardons.

Formal sentencing was put off until next week to allow time for the defense to file exceptions.

Just prior to the jury's sentence, High had submitted a motion for a new trial. He claimed the first-degree murder verdict returned was against the law, against the evidence, against the weight of the evidence and against the charge of the court.

Under the law the jury had to render a sentence of life or death separately. Thursday afternoon and Friday morning were devoted to additional testimony and evidence dealing principally with Smith's past criminal history and discussion by psychiatrists of his personality.

Although the victim was a school girl from the Manayunk section of Philadelphia and her body was found in Montgomery Township, Montgomery County, the State Supreme Court changed the trial to Adams County to assure Smith the fairest possible trial.

The Mitchell girl, 16, disappeared the night of last Dec. 28 while waiting for a bus at a street corner.

Two Days Later

Her body was found two days later in a gully in Whitmarsh Township, Montgomery County, just outside Philadelphia. She had been beaten and ravished.

Smith was arrested Jan. 6 and the next day signed a confession admitting the crime. This he repudiated during the trial.

Twelve years previously, almost to the day, he had been arrested for a series of assaults on women and girls in Norristown. That was on Jan. 5, 1948.

Smith served 10 years for these crimes and an additional year for a parole violation. He was released from prison last Oct.

Cuba Breaks Ties With 'Good' China

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba Friday night broke diplomatic relations with Nationalist China and announced its intention to recognize Red China.

Apparently only technical details remained for Cuba to become the first nation in the Western Hemisphere to formally establish diplomatic relations with the Chinese Communist regime.

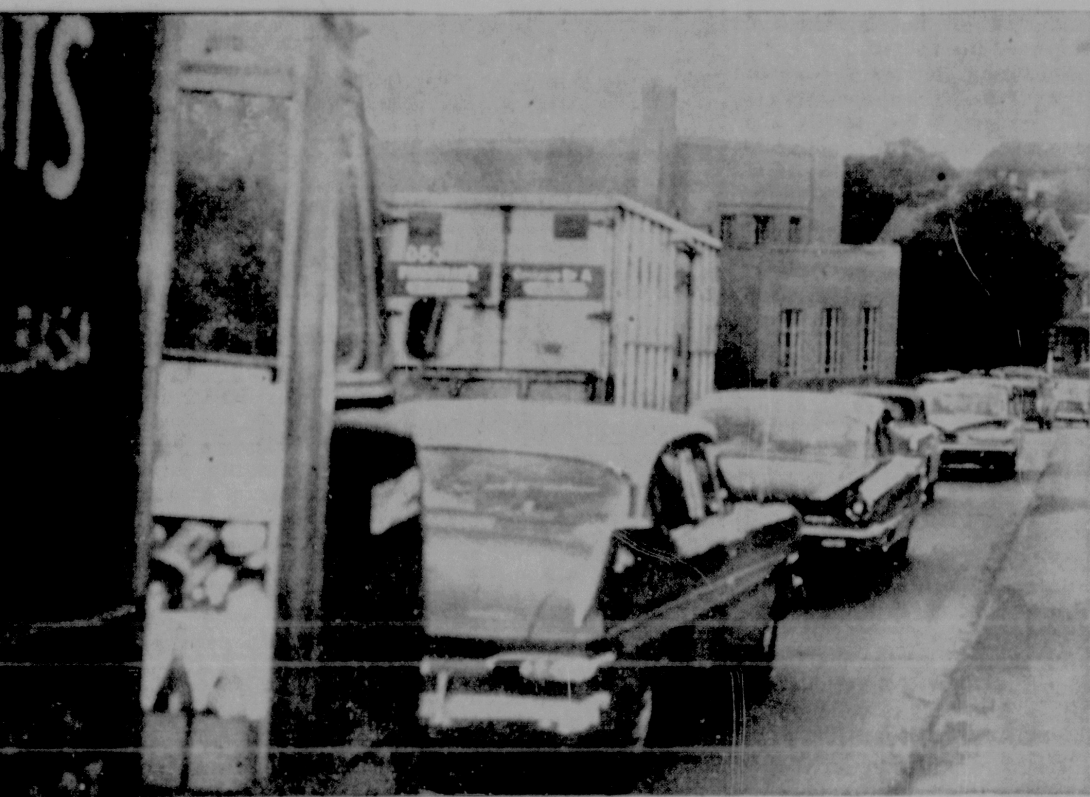

Defying pleas for hemisphere solidarity, Prime Minister Fidel Castro banished the promises of Soviet aid as Cuba's answer to actions of the Organization of American States.

He also welcomed Red Chinese military aid if it is offered.

Hundreds of thousands of Cubans attending a so-called assembly of the Cuban people roared their approval when Castro asked if they wanted to establish diplomatic ties with the Peiping government.

With the shouts of the throng ringing in his ears, Castro said: "From this moment we end our relations with the regime of Chiang Kai-shek."

Chiang is president of the Nationalist Chinese government on Formosa. Nationalist China's ambassador in Havana, Liu Yu-wan, who represents almost 30,000 Chinese nationals in Cuba, declined immediate comment on Castro's announcement.

California Claims Nixon Is In On 'Campaign Payoff'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Cecil R. King (D-Calif.) charged Friday that a "campaign payoff" is being engineered for Richard Nixon in connection with the government's seizure of a Long Beach, Calif., savings and loan firm.

King also said the White House itself has become deeply involved in the seizure fight, and mentioned David W. Kendall, special counsel to President Eisenhower.

In a statement prepared for publication in the Congressional Record, King said a Long Beach law firm headed by the vice president's campaign manager in the Long Beach area "has been given a lucrative retainer" by the government agency that did the seizing.

Claims Finch Suggested

King said the Long Beach law firm was suggested to the federal agency by Robert H. Finch, Nixon's national campaign manager. Finch said he had no comment.

Anti-U.S. Document Shows Castro Aping Communists

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department said Friday a forged anti-U.S. document circulated in Latin America shows the Castro government is aping the Communists in use of the "big lie" technique.

The three-page document purports to be a photographic copy of a secret Washington dispatch airmailed to U. S. embassies throughout the hemisphere, ordering them to prevent Prime Minister Fidel Castro's economic conference of underdeveloped nations proposed in Havana for this month.

The department termed the document an obvious phony. A spokesman said it contains misspellings, the name of a non-existent State Department official, incorrect signatures including that of Undersecretary Douglas Dillon as acting secretary when he actually was away from Washington, and a reference to "the failure of the summit conference" although the document's Feb. 5, 1960 date is well ahead of the Paris summit gathering.

But the general form of the mysterious "airgram" is so close to the real thing that the department started an investigation as to how an authentic official message might have fallen into unfriendly hands.

Western Summit Leaders May—

Boycott 'K' Showing At UN Assembly

WASHINGTON (AP)—Western summit leaders were reported likely Friday to boycott Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's appearance before the United Nations General Assembly.

The Western cold shoulder appeared to be shaping up as a calculated rebuff to what is viewed as Khrushchev's cynical move to turn the session into a gigantic propaganda circus.

President Eisenhower almost certainly will go to New York later, however, to deliver what will amount to a combined Allied reply to any of Khrushchev's taunts and boasts. Most officials expect Khrushchev will stay only a few days.

After Khrushchev Quote

The Allied attitude was made known a few hours after Khrushchev arriving in Finland for a visit, was quoted as saying "it would be good" if Eisenhower showed up along with Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Authoritative informants quickly made it plain that Western leaders at present have no plan of obliging Khrushchev in this way—especially in view of the bitter anti-Western campaign he has conducted since torpedoing the May summit conference.

By staying home while Khrushchev is free-wheeling in New York, Allied chiefs would show the Soviet leader he can't force them into an impromptu summit merely by showing up and announcing he is ready to talk.

Khrushchev might lure some Asian and African heads of government to the United Nations to back up the Communist satellite chiefs he undoubtedly has ordered to attend. But Western diplomats are hoping not too many will make the trip.

The White House and State Department Friday sought to keep the Russians guessing about whether Eisenhower would even show up for a one-shot speech.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said in reply to questions that Eisenhower is still considering whether to deliver such an address.

Hagerty refused to say whether the President has contacted Macmillan since Khrushchev announced Thursday he would lead the Soviet delegation to the U.N. Assembly session beginning Sept. 20.

West European diplomats, however, reported that urgent Big

Three talks are under way to coordinate strategy for handling Khrushchev's decision to take himself into the heart of the free world.

Diplomatic officials, surveying a wide range of reasons why Khrushchev has decided to come, focused on two possibilities: 1. Soviet Union's ideological fight with Red China, and 2. a possible secret Khrushchev plan to make a dramatic announcement of a new Soviet scientific achievement.

Authorities said they would not be surprised if Khrushchev used the United Nations as a forum to announce the Russians have put a man in outer space.

Khrushchev might also be seeking to warn the Red Chinese against challenging Moscow's authority.

Today's Lesson, God's Hand In History

By Newman Campbell

"INASMUCH as our lesson has to do with the threat made by Assyria, we should refresh our minds on the position of that mighty empire. Assyria was that territory along the middle Tigris river, the capital of which was originally Asshur. The name, however, is often applied to the entire area conquered by Assyria, at one time extending to the Mediterranean."—quoting from Peloubet's Select Notes, written with helpful comments by the Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith.

He continues, "At the time of our lesson, Assyria is again in the ascendancy. With the advent of Tiglath-pileser III (746-728 B.C.) the second Assyrian empire began. He was followed by Shalmaneser V (722-722 B.C.), the mighty Sargon (722-705 B.C.) and the man who plays such an important role in Israel's history at this period, Sennacherib (705-681 B.C.)."

God's sovereignty over nations is illustrated in His dealings with Assyria. — Isaiah 10:5-34. Three basic truths are contained in this passage: "God will use Assyria in punishing His people Israel; then He will punish Assyria because of her boastfulness; and, finally, He will bring back a remnant of Israel to the land of promise."—Peloubet's Select Notes.

Angered by His people's disobedience and indifference to Him, God used Assyria in punishing Israel. "Ho Assyrian, the rod of Mine anger, and the staff in their hand is Mine indignation."

HOW MANKIND today can set about fulfilling the divine demand for perfection will be explained at Christian Science services Sunday in the lesson-lesson on "Man."

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon is the Golden Text from Matthew: "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

These comforting words of encouragement from James will be included in the Bible readings: "My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations; knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience. But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing."

Among correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" of which Mary Baker Eddy is the author, the following will be read: "The divine demand, 'Be ye therefore perfect,' is scientific, and the human footsteps leading to perfection are indispensable. God requires perfection, but not until the battle between Spirit and flesh is fought and the victory won."

All are welcome to attend the services at 11 a.m. at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Monroe and Eighth Streets, Stroudsburg.

Religion Today

Candidates' Faith Endured Hate

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

Associated Press Religion Writer

THE two men in the current presidential race belong to religious traditions that have faced bursts of hostility and persecution in American history.

This, at least, is a point in common between Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon, a Quaker, and Democratic candidate John F. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic.

Both faiths have been periodic targets of hate campaigns and vilification.

"Down through our history, at various times and places, both of these groups have encountered instances of popular animus," says historian Dr. Ray W. Irwin, of New York University.

Their followers, in the country's early settlements, were subjected to ostracism, whippings and hangings. At intervals in most of the colonies, they were denied civil and property rights and banned from office.

They came to America originally as small minorities in a predominantly British Protestant setting, and although members played vital roles in the making of a nation, traces of the old antagonism have persisted sporadically through the years.

Each of the faiths has highly distinctive earmarks.

Quakers, still a tiny minority, consider themselves a "third way," neither Catholic nor ordinary Protestant. Catholics, whose numbers spiraled during 19th century immigration, consider theirs the only true church.

Actually, Quaker is a nickname for members of the Religious Society of Friends. There are about 122,000 of them in about 1,000 local "meetings" in this country. Catholics number 41 million in 17,000 local parishes.

The two have similarities. Children born into both Quaker and Catholic families, in a sense, inherit their faith, as Catholics baptized in infancy, or as "birthright" Quakers.

Others also can become members, a Catholic by being "converted," a Quaker by being "convinced." Both faiths emphasize education for character, and have set up many schools and colleges of their own.

Both groups paid in blood for their origins. Catholics in the martyrdoms under ancient paganism, a heritage shared by all Christians, and Quakers by more than 15,000 executions after their rise in England in the 1600s.

Great differences also exist between the two.

Quakers have no fixed creed or ritual, no outward sacraments, no required, uniform beliefs, nor formally ordained clergy. All believers, men and women, have equal standing. Elders may be named to oversee meeting houses (churches).

Members depend for divine guidance on an "inward light," often called "Christ within" or "that of God in every man." Meetings are marked by much silent meditation—"quiet time"—during which anyone may rise to pray or speak.

In contrast, Catholics subscribe to definite doctrines and follow an ancient sacramental ritual. They consider the Pope Christ's vicar on earth and credit him with infallibility on those occasions he speaks officially with the full force of his office on matters of faith and morals. The Mass is the central feature of Catholic worship, and can be performed only by an ordained priest.

Mrs. John McConnell Guest Soloist Sunday

THE THEME of the sermon for tomorrow in the East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, will be "The Ministers of The Master."

The sermon is based upon the salutation of Paul's letter to the Philippians.

Mrs. John McConnell of Stroudsburg is to be the guest soloist.

Mrs. Albert Sommer has been appointed by the Esther Circle to care for the little children during the hour of worship.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Christian have volunteered to welcome the congregation at the doors of the edifice.

The Sanctuary is to be adorned with flowers from the gardens of various members of the congregation.

Gilbert Dunning, superintendent of the church school, encourages visitors to the Poconos to attend the services. There are classes for each age group.

Members of the committee on Christian education and stewardship and promotion are requested to make plans to attend the Presbytery seminars. They will be conducted Sunday, Sept. 18, in the First Presbyterian Church, Bethlehem between 3 and 5:30 p.m.

Best Day Of Our Life Adventists Theme Today

"THE BEST Day of Our Life," is the title of the message to be presented at the 11 a.m. worship service for the Seventh-day Adventists today.

The message will be given by Thomas Miller, local elder, who said, "Could our best day be past already, and be referred to as the good old days, or are we looking forward for our best day? Miller will base his remarks on the text Joshua.

Sabbath school classes begin at 9:30 a.m. The lesson today is titled, "Honesty in All Things" and will bring out the principles of the eighth commandment which condemns theft and robbery, manstealing, slave dealing, forbids wars of conquest. It forbids over-reaching in trade, and requires the payment of just debts and wages.

The mission report will be given by Mrs. Clyde Miller who will tell of the many accidents and diseases among the natives of the mountains of Central New Guinea, where Adventists will build a hospital to help relieve the suffering and untimely death of many in that area.

This was a school of higher learning prior to the days of consolidated public schools. Many of the citizens of this area got their early training for useful Christian lives at this hallowed place.

In 1949 the church building which local people regarded as the Home Church was completely destroyed by fire; but in due time it was replaced by a stone colonial edifice which commands to all who worship there a true sense of the presence of God.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Isaiah 10:5-34; 14:24-27; 37:21-37.

By Alfred J. Booscher

"O Assyrian," said the Lord, "the rod of Mine anger, and the staff in their hand is Mine indignation. I will send him against an hypocritical nation, and against the people of My wrath will I give him a charge, to take the spoil, and to take the prey, and to tread them down like the mire of the streets."—Isaiah 10:5-6.

"Howbeit he meaneth not so, neither do his heart think so; but it is in his heart to destroy and cut off nations not a few. Wherefore it shall come to pass, that when the Lord hath performed His whole work upon Mount Zion on Jerusalem, I will punish the fruit of the stout heart of the king of Assyria."—Isaiah 10:7, 12.

"For he saith, By the strength of my hand I have done it, and by my wisdom; for I am prudent; and I have removed the bounds of the people, and have robbed their treasures, and I have put down the inhabitants like a valiant man; and my hand hath found as a nest the riches of the people."—Isaiah 10:13-14.

Then Isaiah sent Hezekiah, saying: "The remnant that is escaped of the house of Judah shall again take root downward, and bear fruit upward; for out of Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, and they that escape; the zeal of the Lord of Hosts shall do this."—Isaiah 37:31-32.

GOLDEN TEXT—Isaiah 37:16.

are they Going?

A familiar sight . . . men with briefcases daily throng airports all over the nation, winning their way from one place to another. But where, really, are they going?

In this busy age of appointments, rush hours, and summit meetings, we search for success, for more money, for a better future, for a variety of things. Yet, like so many mid-twentieth century Americans, the harder we seek the less we find.

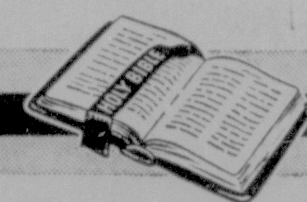

We need a job, a purpose, a home, a family. But also, we need a church. We need to go into that church to reaffirm our faith both in God and in our fellow beings. Only then does our quest — and our ultimate destination — begin to make sense.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Which Life Is Best?

Russians, like Americans, are prone to criticize the way things go in their country—when they think they can get away with it. And Sovetskaya Rossiya (newspaper of the Russian Republic) protests that things are too cozy in Russian prison camps.

In fact, Russian prison life compares so favorably with life at large in Russia that 96 per cent of the prisoners are repeaters, who would as soon be in prison as not, the paper claims.

Well, where else in Russia would you be sure of access to a bath every ten days? And get clean sheets and laundered underwear every ten days to boot? And prisoners are paid for their work, can buy in the camp store, eat with the guards, and enjoy radio, movies and dominoes.

In Russia today, going to jail seems to be the next best thing to escaping from the country.

The notion may be amusing, but it really represents a human tragedy for millions of unfortunate people. Over the world, in our time, various nations under various systems have allowed government to assume all responsibility for the course things shall take, and this has necessitated consolidating all power in government.

The results all have been dire. The original aim is always to create an earthly paradise, and the result has been so bad that anyone who found means to escape did so. Refugees from East Europe are an old story.

The new version of this story is the exodus from Cuba. Cubans thronged the American consulate, trying to get visas to leave that red-inspired paradise until Castro had to forbid departures to keep his den from being depopulated.

Britain never got so near the critical mass of absolute government, but at the height of the Labor Government's nationalization and control programs tens of thousands of the country's brightest citizens queued up for passage to lands where freedom was greater, and a man might rise in the world according to his ability without bureaucratic permission.

Yet, ignoring these lessons, there are men high in both political parties here who are full of proposals for greater controls and government intervention in our lives, for the years ahead. Will Sing Sing someday seem attractive to the average American?

Opinions Of Other Editors

The Illusion Of Motoring

A good deal of traffic congestion and waste of time and gasoline would be saved if people would only use their ingenuity. Take the case of the Wisconsin widow we visited on her rural estate some time ago.

When we drove into the yard we were greeted by two huge dogs that barked vociferously and appeared anything but friendly. But the owner called them over to an old auto body with no wheels, opened the door and in bounded both dogs. They promptly jumped up on the seat and looked out through the windshield as happy and quiet as you could wish.

"Darn fools think they're going somewhere," explained their mistress. "Bought that old thing at a junk yard for $5. Best investment I ever made. Only way I get some peace and quiet around here."

Now a St. Paul doctor claims to have found a somewhat similar way to put babies to sleep. After noting that his infant daughter doze off promptly in his moving automobile he has devised a gadget that gives her crib a similar motion and makes a noise like a car engine.

If that sort of thing will work on a dog or a baby, why not the old folks, too? Fix up some vibrating car seats and a steering wheel for a convenient nook in the house and project travel movies on the wall.

The patrolman on the beat might drop in to give a traffic ticket occasionally, to make everything more natural. And Junior could burst a balloon from time to time, simulating the sound of a blow-out.

The possibilities seem almost unlimited. —Milwaukee Journal

Reports From Congress

South Not Solid

By Congressional Quarterly

Washington — The so-called "Solid South" has emerged as a front line of battle in the 1960 Presidential election.

What has happened to this former Democratic stronghold? Actually, the "Solid South" has not gone solidly Democratic since 1944, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt won his fourth term. In 1948, four rebellious Southern states — Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina — gave their electoral votes to States Rights candidate Sen. Strom Thurmond (D. S. C.) instead of the Democrat, Harry S. Truman.

Then, President Eisenhower cracked the "Solid South" in both of his Presidential races, taking Florida, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia in 1952, and those four plus Louisiana in 1956, it was the first time since 1928, when Al Smith headed the Democratic ticket, that any Southern states had voted Republican.

Threats to Democrats — This year, the once-firm hold of the Democrats on the South is threatened by a combination of Dixiecrat and Republican pressures. Relations between Southern state Democrats and the national party became increasingly cooler during the term of former Democratic national chairman Paul M. Butler. He antagonized the South with his uncompromising pro-civil rights statements and his get-tough attitude toward the South on such party matters as dues-payments.

The issue of civil rights has further alienated Southerners in Congress from their more liberal Democratic colleagues. Civil rights bills passed Congress in both 1957 and 1960.

The civil rights platform adopted by the Democratic national convention in July was a bitter blow to the South. It, plus some economic passages in the platform, has brought continuous condemnation from below the Mason-Dixon line.

The nomination of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) was accomplished against the opposition for the top spot of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Texas), for whom 80 per cent of the Southern votes at the convention were cast.

Johnson's presence on the ticket as vice presidential nominee was a sop to the South much diluted by the national Democratic party efforts to present Johnson to the country as a practical liberal under whose leadership in the Senate the first civil rights laws in 82 years were passed.

In addition, perhaps the strongest anti-Catholic sentiment generated by Kennedy's religion is found in the South. Tennessee's Gov. Buford Ellington has said it would be the most important issue in his state's voting.

Independent Elector Plan — There are two direct threats to Democratic victory in the South: first, independent electors and second, strenuous efforts by the Republicans to pick up the states.

The electing of unpledged electors rather than those bound to major party candidates could prevent either major candidate from receiving the required majority in the electoral college in the Nov. 8 election. Then the election would be thrown into the House of Representatives where the South would have greater bargaining power.

Mississippi Democrats have adopted a plan whereby Democratic voters may elect independent Presidential electors. Six of the 11 candidates for elector on the Alabama Democratic ticket will be unpledged.

Three other states — Florida,

Georgia and South Carolina have movements in the works which might result in selection of unpledged electors. The total in these five states would be 44 electoral votes.

Republican Plans — Actually the independent elector movement would be more likely merely to keep either major party from winning the states involved than to cause the election to go to the House.

But in addition to this movement, many important party leaders in Southern states — such as Sen. Harry Flood Byrd, Democratic strong man in Virginia — are staying silent, failing to support the Democratic ticket.

This will help the Republican already have been stepped up because of the encouragement Vice President Richard M. Nixon received in his two recent sorties into the South.

He and his campaign advisors were so pleased with the warm response he received in Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina, that they have re-evaluated their chances in the South and have planned to fight much harder there.

They plan to emphasize the conservative nature of the Republican party, with such spokesmen as Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona scheduled for heavy Southern duty.

Social Security Guide

Q. My husband and I have been drawing benefits at the minimum rate. Now he has died. Will my widow's benefit be only three-fourths of his $33.00 monthly rate?

A. No. You will receive $33.00 a month, although the widow's benefit is usually three-fourths of her husband's monthly rate; however, a widow alone will not be paid less than $33.

'Pearl of the Antilles'

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Geography

All sorts of new places and new names appear in the events of the day and as it is impossible to understand what is going on without a working knowledge of geography, I looked around for a good one.

Back when I went to school, geography was a separate subject and we had to study it, drawing maps, tracing them sometimes, filling them in with variegated crayons, putting in the place names, so that one had an idea where a place was and what kind of people lived there and what they did for a living and how one thing related to another.

Nowadays, it appears, geography is all mixed up with other subjects and is part of the social sciences which is a mixed-up subject, not meaning the same thing to two social scientists. So it was a bit difficult to find the kind of book I wanted which would educate me about places and peoples.

So, I bought a geography from North and South and that they the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C. This is a volume prepared by the Air Force for ROTC, "Military Aspects of World Political Geography," and it is a mighty good book and very helpful, in deed.

Nations are multiplying like flies and soon the United Nations will have as many members as the United States Senate has legislators. And if each one wants to make a speech on each subject that comes up, the General Assembly will exist under a permanent filibuster.

To understand what is going on, a person requires a re-reading of history and geography. This is particularly true concerning the new nations of Africa, a continent about which most of us know nothing. Yet Africa has been in the news, as it were, for more centuries than the Americas.

The peoples of Africa are mostly various shades of black although not all of them go by the generic term of Negroes.

For instance, Hannibal's armies that marched on Rome during the Punic Wars (218-201 B.C.) were led by a dark-skinned Semite people called the Carthaginians who were descendants of the Phoenicians who were mentioned in the Bible as being sometimes the friends and most often the enemies of the Hebrews when Saul, David, Solomon and their descendants ruled over Israel.

These people intermarried undoubtedly with the Hamitic peoples of whom the present Ethiopians are the best examples. These do not regard themselves as Negroes. The Bantus in the news today, however, are Negroes.

As the Portuguese, Spaniards, Dutch, French and British have been invading and settling in parts of Africa since the 15th century, and as the Romans, Vandals, and other European conquerors came there even earlier, to say nothing of the Turks, Arabs and other Moslem conquerors, the peoples of many parts of Africa are of very mixed origin.

In fact, as one reads geography, the question must arise as to why peoples look so different. Why are some of one color and others of another? Is it the sun? Is it the food they eat? Is it the natural environment?

The Bible has a simple explanation in the story of Noah's sons, but that does not give us an inkling into the varieties of human beings that are found upon the face of the Earth.

What makes a Lumbumba rise above a mass of illiterate and most savage men and women? Is it education? Does schooling change personality to that extent? From what part of Africa did Adam Clayton Powell's ancestors come or Alexandre Dumas' or Ralph Bunche's?

There is so much to know and life is so short that one hardly gets started before his day comes. Well, I am just beginning to study Africa to try to understand what it contains.

I recall that when I first heard of China and the Chinese, it was quite simple: China had no snow; the Chinese ate rice; the Chinese were all short and thin, etc., etc. Then I lived in China and discovered that everything, but everything, I had heard about that country was false.

I soon learned that China was like any other place and that latitude and longitude affected the lives of people, that snow fell in winter and it was hot in summer and that there was a North and South and that they were different.

Off The Record

By Robert Clark, City Editor

Today rings down the curtain on the 44th annual Greene-Dreher-Sterling Fair. For three days the event which is awaited yearly by the sections of Monroe, Wayne and Pike counties has been in progress successfully to say the least.

Like other years the G-D-S exhibition, entertainment and carnival showing was above par and gave the exhibitors and fun-lovers what they want at a day or night outing.

Why shouldn't it be as good this season? Didn't the G-D-S organization, sponsors of the fair, have two leaders who saw that no stone was left unturned to assure the success of Number Forty Four.

In president Carroll Fetherman and Bob Staph, secretary, the association had two guys who do things up right just like those two other fellows down Jersey way.

Every event ran like the tick of the clock and Staph's procurement of Stoney Cooper and Wilma Lee, the Grand Opery stars, was the tipoff that every day and night would bring enjoyment to the visitors. Up to today this was indicated 100 per cent in favor of the Fetherman-Staph guidance. Today's activities will make this unanimous.

The friendly atmosphere that hovers over the Greene-Dreher-Sterling grounds is phenomenal. No wonder folks keep coming back year after year. They just can't help returning to a territory that beams from ear to ear with the "Hiya neighbor" attitude.

These people go sit high up in the mountains go out of their way to make visitors welcome. It is plain down-to-earth courtesy they have — something so many of us lack.

Folks who visited this year's 44th G-D-S Fair will be back for many more — and we'll be among them.

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennett Cerf

My birdseed threw restraint to the wind and bought himself a four-seater airplane. Came a bright Sunday and he invited the bachelor next door to go up in it with his wife and himself.

"The great thing about flying up here in the wide blue yonder," he exulted to his bachelor friend, "is that I don't have to worry about traffic jams, crazy pedestrians or traffic lights — and best of all, there's no back seat driving."

Just then his wife, seated in the rear, looked out of the window and cried, "Robert! Look out for those birds!"

The Allen-Scott Report

City Registrations

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — An eye popping report on Democratic registration gains is behind Sen. John Kennedy's decision to have a major part of his campaign organization concentrate on registering voters in the large industrial areas.

First figures just in from Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, Cleveland and Los Angeles show that the Democrats are out-registering Republicans by margins that could have a significant bearing on the outcome of the November election.

Prepared by Rep. Frank Thompson (D., N.J.), chairman of Kennedy's national Voters Registration Committee, the report shows that new registered Democratic voters in these cities are topping Republicans by margins of nearly three to one.

The "Philadelphia story," as Thompson refers to it, has the Kennedy headquarters almost cheering out loud. It shows that the highly efficient organization of Rep. William Green (D., Pa.) had registered 76,679 new Democratic voters to the Republicans' 28,873 by the last week in August.

If this Democratic registration trend continues and can be transferred into Kennedy votes in November, the Democratic Presidential nominee is virtually assured of a large enough vote in Philadelphia to carry predominantly Republican Pennsylvania, according to Thompson's report.

Pennsylvania, with its 32 electoral votes, is one of the 'big six' states in which both Sen. Kennedy and Vice President Nixon believe the election will be won or lost.

The other states are New York, California, Ohio, Michigan, and Illinois. Together they have a combined electoral vote of 281, or more than the 269 needed for election.

In his report to Senator Kennedy, Thompson pointed out that the first registration figures from the other large cities in the 'big six' states were just as impressive as those from Philadelphia.

He reported that a three weeks' registration drive in Los Angeles added 50,000 Democratic voters, a majority of whom are American-born Mexicans. During the same period, the Republicans added less than 10,000.

In Chicago, Cleveland, and New York, where the registration drives are just beginning, Thompson said the Democratic trend was the heaviest since 1948 when former President Harry S. Truman won his upset victory over then Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

In conclusion, Thompson stressed that the Democrats had obtained a big jump on the Republicans by being organized to start their registration drives early, and this initial advantage can be maintained if the party is prepared to spend sufficient funds to support the campaign.

Changing plans — Already, Thompson's report has caused Senator Kennedy and his top political lieutenants to make some major changes in his campaign strategy.

The first switch involves the additional money that Thompson requested. More than $1,000,000, originally earmarked for TV and radio broadcasts during the campaign, is now being shifted to help pay for the stepped-up registration drive.

The second change involves the routing of Senator Kennedy's campaign tours.

The Thompson report shows that many of the heavy Democratic registration gains are being made in the "suburban" areas of the large cities. These are the areas that President Eisenhower carried overwhelmingly in 1952 and 1956.

To bring out this new Democratic vote in November, Kennedy's new strategy calls for him to make "shopping center tours" in these areas when he visits the large industrial cities.

For example, when Kennedy goes to Philadelphia at the end of October, he will campaign from "shopping center to shopping center" before going into the city to make a nation-wide TV-radio broadcast.

This campaign pattern will be repeated in the other large cities.

Political notes — Robert Kennedy, brother of Senator John Kennedy, and one of his top campaign aides, told a meeting of western Democratic senators, that the party's registration goal for 1960 is to put 8,000,000 additional Democratic voters on the rolls.

Paul H. Nitze, former director of the State Department policy planning staff and now president of the Foreign Service Educational Foundation, is Senator Kennedy's first choice as his Secretary of State if he is elected.

Nitze, whom Kennedy has named to head up his advisory board on national security affairs, is an expert on Russia.

He also headed up a U.S. Strategic bombing survey made by the Truman administration. The Democratic Presidential nominee has definitely decided not to appoint Adlai Stevenson to the post. That's the report that Representative Thomas "Tip" O'Neill (D., Mass.), one of Kennedy's closest political associates, has passed on to Democrats on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Health Column

Keeping Active

By Herman N. Bundesen, M. D. If you are dieting, you must keep active — even on a holiday weekend.

I know many of you want to spend the holiday in the country or at least in the back yard. That's fine, but don't spend the day in the hammock just because it's a holiday.

Any benefits you might achieve from a diet will be counteracted by too much rest.

Besides, when you keep busy, you are less inclined to think of your stomach.

So at least a little moderate exercise seems to be in order.

Try Rowing If you are going to a lake, pass up the temptation to take the outboard along, just this once. Try rowing instead.

I know it's old-fashioned these days, but it's good for the figure. Just one hour of rowing will consume 1,200 calories.

Swimming will account for only 300 to 700 calories per hour depending upon your speed.

Advantage Of Handball If you played handball for half an hour every day, your total weight loss from this activity after 12 months would probably be about 16 pounds.

If you don't like handball and if you can't go rowing, why not take a short walk? This is a good practice day in and day out, weather permitting.

If you walked regularly for half an hour each day at a moderate speed (3.75 mph.), you could lose as much as five pounds per year.

Still, the main thing is to stick to your diet.

Question And Answer M. B.: I have a salty taste in my mouth at all times.

Can you tell me what causes this?

Answer: Disagreeable taste in the mouth may be due to local causes about the teeth, tonsils or sinuses.

Other possible general causes may be diabetes, blood disorders, intestinal or liver conditions or kidney disease.

Biography Of Red Hero

MOSCOW (AP)—The state publishing house has issued a 132-page biography of Marshal Vasily Konstantinovich Blucher, one of the Soviet Union's greatest military heroes who was executed as an alleged traitor in the Stalin purges of 1938.

The memory of Blucher already had been rehabilitated, along with many other once-disgraced military men. He was hailed once more as a hero in ceremonies at Minsk in 1956.

The biography, written by V. Bushenkin, is the first major work on him, however.

Kremlin Warns Red Chinese

MOSCOW (AP)—The Kremlin has discreetly warned the Red Chinese they could never expect to stand alone against the capitalist world.

The oblique warning was a striking example of the background ideological debate between Moscow and Peking over the theory and practice of Communist world policy. Rarely have published statements gone so far as to address the Red Chinese directly and by name in the months of ideological bickering.

Rev. Eichman To Moderate YMCA Educational Series

Rev. Charles W. Eichman, pastor of the Canadensis Moravian Church and president of the Monroe County Ministerium will serve as Program Director for the "Education for Marriage" course to be given at the Y. M. C. A. beginning Tuesday, September 13th, through October 4th.

The classes will be held from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Rev. Eichman has been pastor of the Canadensis Moravian Church for three years, coming here from Palmyra, N. J. He is a graduate of Moravian College and Moravian Theological Seminary in Bethlehem. Rev. Eichman is married and the father of three children, ages 10, seven and four.

Rev. Eichman will introduce the speaker for each evening and serve as moderator for the discussions which will follow. Subjects to be covered on successive weeks are "The Spiritual Values in Marriage," "Money and Budgeting," "Interpersonal Relationships" and "Sexual Harmony in Marriage." The subject for the evening will be introduced by a qualified leader and followed by a group discussion on the problems which could arise in this area of marriage and the various methods of solving them.

"Premarital and marriage education is still in its early stages, and too few people are aware of its values. Although our local ministers usually counsel the young people who come to them to be married, the course we have outlined will provide for eight additional hours of discussion in the most important aspects of marriage life," Rev. Eichman said.

"A group course such as this one is not concerned with marriages already in trouble but rather those which are happy and plan to stay that way. Marriage Education Courses such as ours might be called Preventive Medicine."

Couples wishing to register for the course are asked to contact their own minister, the YMCA, or Mrs. Hellman at HA 1-3360, soon, so that the class may be completed.

Just Between Us—

—By Bobby Westbrook

Pisa, Italy. Anyone who is willing to trade a castle in Spain for one in Tuscany, I'm in the market. There is the Castello Sominno not so many miles from Livorno (Leghorn for some inscrutable reason, in English) which meets all the specifications. Complete with towers, battlements and the proper medieval romantic aspect, it sits high on a cliff overlooking the blue, blue Ligurian Sea.

Tuscany is a very pleasant province from any aspect, and somehow reminded me more of home than any of the others. The hills are more gentle, for one thing; rounded and with olive orchards climbing over the lower ones and trees softening the outlines of the higher ones, and they come down to the sea softly like sheep instead of standing stark against the sky to let the sea batter them, as they do near Naples.

Moreover, where they recede there are wide valleys with the crops planted horizontally instead of on the bias. The crops are different, too, but flowers there are plenty—all in pots—on the workers are gathering them, the peppers hanging in decorative orange clusters against the gray stone of the farmhouses, the new-plowed fields ready for the third crop of the season somehow purple in the Italian light, and the second crop of artichokes growing like ferns in their straight lines.

The roadsides are different too, from home with palms mingling with pines and oleander bushes still blooming their heads off in between. The farmhouses have no lawns or flower gardens—just hard-packed dirt under the grape arbors now glowing with ripening grapes, but flowers there are plenty—all in pots—on the workers are gathering them, the peppers hanging in decorative orange clusters against the gray stone of the farmhouses, the new-plowed fields ready for the third crop of the season somehow purple in the Italian light, and the second crop of artichokes growing like ferns in their straight lines.

Mary Ashcroft Wedding Held In East Stroudsburg

St. Matthew's Catholic Church was the setting on July 16 for the wedding ceremony of Miss Mary Ann Ashcroft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ashcroft, of 156 Analamink St., East Stroudsburg, and John J. Collins, of Trumbauersville, Pa.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stelck, of Finland Road, Trumbauersville.

The double-ring ceremony was performed at a 10 a. m. nuptial mass officiated by Rev. Harold Durkin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of embroidered silk organza with short sleeves and square neckline. The back of the ballerina length gown was a cascade of ruffles, trimmed with silk organza roses. Her headpiece was a small crown with a chin-length veil. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds which were presented to the church and left at the altar of the Blessed Virgin Mary, at the completion of the wedding ceremony.

Miss Evelyn Hennes was maid of honor. She wore a street-length blue chiffon gown with white accessories and carried a bouquet of blue and white carnations with blue streamers.

The best man was Richard Ashcroft, of East Stroudsburg, brother of the bride, and ushers were David Shimer and Edward Ashcroft, another brother of the bride, both of East Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis was organist and soloist. She played "Ave Maria," "Jesus, Jesus, Come To Me," and "Mother at Your Feet Is Kneeling."

The mother of the bride wore a yellow linen bell sheath with white accessories and a corsage of white roses. The groom's mother was attired in a beige silk organza dress with a lace bodice and wore a corsage of pink roses.

Following a reception at the home of the bride, the couple left for a three-week wedding trip to tour the New England states. They will reside at Buckert Road, Boyertown, Pa.

The bride is a graduate of East Stroudsburg High and the bridegroom attended Ambler High School, in Ambler. He is now employed by the Hunter Spring Corp., in Lansdale.

Word has been received that Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Cesare, of El Monte, Calif., and formerly of Bangor, RD 3, have celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Saturday, Aug. 27.

To mark the golden anniversary celebration, the children of the couple sponsored a complete re-enactment of the original event in 1910. The program included wedding ceremony, photographs and a reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Cesare are the parents of fourteen children, 26 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

The former Bangor area couple moved to the West Coast with their children about five years ago after residing at their Bangor address for the greater part of their lives. They moved to the Slate Belt area via Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Mr. Cesare was employed locally by the first silk mill that operated in Pen Argyl and of more recent years at Buffalo Knitting Mills, Pen Argyl. He is now retired.

Mrs. Cesare, who for the greater part of her life was and is a housewife, worked briefly during the war years at Bangor Mills, in Pen Argyl.

The parents at one period during World War II, saw all six of their sons, and two of their daughters in military service. All have since left the service with the exception of one son still serving in the U. S. Air Force.

Estoril Home Of Pretenders To Thrones

LISBON (after the third day)—Since yesterday (and for the remainder of our stay in Portugal) we have been making our base of operations a boarding-house located in the seaside resort suburb of Estoril. Part of every day, however, still finds us combing the streets and colorful shops of Lisbon only 15 miles to the south.

Estoril, with its miles of golden beaches, casinos, beautiful contemporary homes and renovated palaces, is a playground for sunbathers both summer and winter. It is, at the same time, the home and retreat of at least half a dozen pretenders to as many thrones — including King Carroll of Rumania and Italy's King Umberto. It was only a few miles from here, at Sintra, that Lord Byron wrote of the "Glorious Eden."

Last evening we went to Lisbon and searched out one of the many typical fado restaurants where the fado is sung to the accompaniment of throbbing guitars. The fado is sometimes racy, sometimes slow and melancholy. Its theme usually depicts life's everyday problems, hardships and heartaches. We learned that many of these ballads were first sung in the late 16th century, at the start of Portugal's 60-years of domination under Spain. We left there feeling we had heard—as well as seen—much of what is Portugal.

This afternoon held interest and fun for us as we watched the sleepy fishing-village of Ericeira to the north, awoken as fishing trollers were seen on the horizon, returning from what was hoped would be a good day's catch. The catch was good. And, it seemed only minutes before the varinas (fishwives) had the fresh, silvery sardines roasting over glowing charcoal. The larger fish were prepared for the auction that takes place every day, beginning at dusk, and continuing well into the night.

Nearly every day there is a festival some where in Portugal. Tomorrow we cross the river to the lezria (flatlands) and on to the village of Alco-chete to attend the Festival of the Green Cap (during which time, each year, the local salt-beds are blessed), and the bull games which promise to add much to the festive occasion. Barbara didn't feel too enthused about the prospects of the "games" until she learned that Portuguese bull-fights are different from those fought in Mexico and Spain—in Portugal the S.P.C.A. has won the battle, and the life of touros is spared.

The day after tomorrow we say "adios amigos" to this western-most country of Europe, with its cork trees, port wines and golden beaches.

Las Palmas: Isle of the Grand Canary (two days later)—Las Palmas is the capital city of the Canary Islands. Grand Canary is a small, round island only 38-miles in diameter, yet is the largest of this group of Spanish Isles.

It was late this afternoon when our vicount lowered itself on the short run-way, and in just over 30 minutes (if Jim Rathmann had been behind the wheel we might have shaved off a minute or two—but we all doubted it) our airport bus reached the city. Safari Airlines personnel soon had us checked into a hotel owned by Elder Dempster Steamship Line.

The desk clerk seemed overly glad to see us. We thought we knew why, and later found our guess confirmed. We learned that the hotel caters exclusively to steamship and airline passengers enroute to, and from, Africa, and that the poor desk clerk hadn't a chance to utilize his talents since the last group of overnight visitors four days ago.

Today is a religious holiday and it was with disappointment that we found the shops closed. And we learned that Casa de Colon (now a museum), where Columbus lived during his stay here in 1492 closes at five. Barbara just found a notice that we had previously overlooked in our room, it reads, "The Club Tangiere Invites You to Partake of an Evening of Spanish Music and Entertainment." But we can't, our plane leaves at 6:30 a.m.—but we probably will!

Accra, Ghana, the following night—It was a long flight from Las Palmas and brief refueling stops at Bathurst, Gambia, and Freetown, Sierra Leone, were welcomed. Each time, as we stepped from the plane, all that we have come to know of this part of Africa seemed to kaleidoscope before us. There was no question—we were back in West Africa. The SS United States, the Mona Lisa and the Louvre, Lisbon, with its streets of mosaic inlay and even the Spanish music and entertainment at Las Palmas last night, suddenly seemed long ago.

The airport at Accra was busier than we had ever imagined it (which is understandable when you consider the number of American and Russian troop-planes on hand for UN troop shipment to the Congo). It was good to get to our hotel where we could stretch out and think about tomorrow.

'Fine Young Cannibals' At Pocono Drive-In Sunday

NATALIE WOOD and Robert Wagner, appear together for the first time in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "All the Fine Young Cannibals." Co-starred are Susan Kohner and George Hamilton and Pearl Bailey.

It opens at the Pocono Drive-In theatre Sunday night.

A strong drama of today's youth facing a changing world. "All the Fine Young Cannibals" is as unusual as its title, which stems from the picture's theme of the struggle of four young people to find happiness.

Chad Bixby (Robert Wagner) is the offspring of a Dallas minister who has shown nothing but indifference to his only son. Salome Davis (Natalie Wood) is the eldest daughter of puritan-cal parents. Catherine and Tony McDowall (Susan Kohner and George Hamilton) are spoiled children of wealthy parents. In their search to find love, the paths of these four cross, their hopes and fears are revealed, and in their eagerness to grab at life with both hands, no matter what the cost, they are brought to the brink of tragedy.

Pearl Bailey's role is that of Ruby Jones, a blues singer who finds her personal nirvana in alcohol. It is Ruby who gives Chad his big break when he comes to New York by starting him off on his career as a musician in her night club.

Seen Weakening Christianity

HAMILTON, Ont. (AP)—An Anglican bishop from India says many Westerners show a patronizing attitude toward the Indian people and that this weakens the cause of Christianity.

"There is still too often an unconscious attitude that God speaks to India through London, New York or Toronto," the Rt. Rev. Michael Hollis told a meeting of Anglican Church officials.

Boston Breaks Owen's Record

Yanks Stage Comeback; Win 6 More Gold Medals

By TED SMITH
Associated Press Sports Editor

ROME (AP) — America's aroused Olympic team won six gold medals Friday and closed ground on the leading Russians with eye-popping performances by hurdler Glenn Davis, broad jumper Ralph Boston, sprinter Wilma Rudolph and diver Bob Webster.

The brilliant comeback after an agonizing start boosted the United States gold medal total to 12 as compared to 15 for the Russians. Americans won six of the 11 decided Friday, three in track and three in swimming.

As a result of the U.S. recovery Russia's lead in the unofficial point standings was reduced sharply. At the end of the day's competition, Russia had 259½ points and the United States 240. While the American forces were hounding back, a scandal involving an earlier Russian-Bulgarian match in Greco-Roman wrestling rocked the games. It was charged that the Bulgarian lost deliberately to the Russian and assured his Communist comrade a gold medal at the expense of a Yugoslav wrestler. Still later half of the 30 boxing referees were fired for incompetence.

Raps Record

The swimmers picked up Friday night where the track and field forces left off the afternoon. Mike Troy, a 19-year-old Indiana University student from Indianapolis, broke the world record with a time of 2 minutes 12.8 seconds for the 200-meter butterfly swim. Dave Gilianders of Royal Oak, Mich. was third.

A four-girl medley relay team also smashed the world record for 400-meters with 4:41.1, as compared to the former mark of 4:44.6 set by a U.S. team in 1959. Chris Von Salza of Saratoga, Calif., the 400-meter freestyle champ, swam the anchor leg and left the Australian pursuers behind after Carolyn Schuler of Orinda, Calif., the butterfly gold medalist, had given her the lead. Lynn Burke of Flushing, N.Y., swam the backstroke leg and Patty Kamper of Beverly Hills, Calif., the breaststroke.

Six Gold Medals

The American men swimmers now have won six of the nine events completed and the U.S. women have won three of seven. In 1948 the combined U.S. swim team won 12 gold medals.

Warning up for Saturday night's showdown battle with Russia, the U.S. basketball team polished off Uruguay 108-50 for its fifth straight win. Adrian Smith, former Kentucky star, was the leading scorer with 15 points as Coach Pete Newell juggled his lineup.

Davis, defending champion from Columbus, Ohio, sparked a one-two-three sweep of the 400-meter hurdles and set an Olympic record of 49.3, erasing the mark he set four years ago in Melbourne.

Boston won the broad jump. Both he and runner-up Irv (Bo) Robertson smashed Jesse Owens' Olympic mark that was set in 1935. Boston, the Laurel, Miss., athlete who twice beat Owens' world mark this year, leaped 26 feet 7½ inches. Robertson was close with 26½ ft.

Webster, a 21-year-old University of Michigan student from Santa Ana, Calif., won the high diving crown with favored Gary Tobian of Glendale, Calif., close behind. As Tobian had won the 3-meter springboard title, the victory gave the United States a sweep of both gold medals in men's diving. Germany's Ingrid Kramer upset the American girls in both of their diving events earlier in the week.

Leaves Field

Miss Rudolph, a gangling 20-year-old speedster from Clarksville, Tenn., ran away from the field in the women's 100-meter final in the amazing time of 11 seconds flat which would have been a world record except for a favoring wind.

Russia won both the women's shot put in which Tamara Press, sister of the Olympic winner, broke the Olympic record, and the 200-meter walk. New Zealand also won two—Peter Snell in the 800-meter run and Murray Halberg in the 5,000-meter race in both of which there were no American qualifiers.

The sweep of all three medals in the 400-meter hurdles was the second such scored at these games by the United States. The first was in the shot put.

Yanks Fight

It was a fight all the way—but only among the Americans. Coming up to the last hurdle, the 25-year-old Davis, one of the most consistent of performers, had only a slim edge on 22-year-old Cliff Cushman of Grand Forks, N.D.

Cushman hit the sixth hurdle but managed to keep his feet and finished in 49.5 just ahead of Dick Howard of Albuquerque, N.M., who was third in 49.7. All were well under the old games mark of 50.1 held jointly by Davis and Eddie Seldenthof of the United States.

Davis ran off stride, he said afterward, but even then he was only one-tenth of a second off his world record.

Miss Rudolph who stands 5 feet 11, weighs only 130 was robbed of a world record in the 100 meters by a wind only slightly above the maximum. It was measured at 2.75 meters per second while the allowed limit is 2.00.

She was out of her marks like a shot and literally ran away from the field, finishing a good three meters in front.

Bolt Shares Dallas Lead With 67

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Tommy Bolt, veteran of the tour, and home pro Earl Stewart shot 3-under-par 67s Friday to tie for the first-round lead in the $25,000 Dallas Open Golf Tournament.

Stewart faltered in the stretch and 3-putted the 16th and 17th greens or he would have had a sensational 65.

Bolt played a steady round but did his finest coming in. He shot four birdies and a bogey on the second nine.

Hottest Day

It was the hottest day of the year for the tour — 94 degrees with much humidity — and par over the 6,826-yard Oak Cliff Country Club course didn't take the hammering that was expected. The pros complained the heat handicapped them greatly. Bolt is noted for his club throwing. But he just played golf Friday and was putting like a machine.

Three Held On Charge By Umps

JESSUP, Md. (AP)—Two Washington men and a former Baltimore night club dancer were arraigned Friday on charges of trying to extort money from American League umpires Bill McKinley and Ed Runge.

They were arraigned in nearby Odenton by Magistrate William J. Boehm.

He set bail at $5,000 each for Donald E. Anderson, 32, and Robert D. Waldron, 30, and $2,000 for Miss Mary Jane Spencer, 21, now of Suitland, Md.

Woman Held
A second woman, Miss Helen Ella, 24, of Washington, was released in $500 bail as a material witness.

Miss Spencer, a shapely brunette who wore tight-fitting slacks and blouse at the arraignment, said she met McKinley, 50, and Runge, 42, while working in a Baltimore night club and was instructed by her employer to go out with them.

State Police Cpl. Gary R. Grant told Boehm that Anderson, identified as Miss Spencer's fiancé, and Waldron later contacted the umpires and demanded $2,000 each under threat of damaging their reputations.

Fundamentals Get Big Play At Pocono Basketball Camp

NEW YORK University basketball coach Lou Rossini demonstrated several individual offensive movements and then stepped aside to watch some 50 boys practice the moves.

"That's what I call teaching," observed Temple coach Harry Litwack, who along with Bloomsburg State College coach Bill Foster, runs the Pocono Basketball Camp at Camp Sun Mountain, in Shawnee.

"We need several pro stars," Litwack a long time summer resident of the Poconos continued "and they did a good job but they didn't work with the kids enough."

Litwack, part owner of Camp Sun Mountain, explained the basketball set-up for the 10-day camp.

Camp Counsellors
"We have about 100 boys split into two age groups. The oldest boys are 16. College players serve as counsellors for the younger boys and the counsellors for the older boys are all high school coaches."

The two age groups work at different times each day, so that a great deal of individual instruction is possible.

Each group meets with one of the head instructors for a half an hour period. Then the counsellors take over, working with their cabin groups on the points stressed by the instructor.

Two sessions of the camp are held, one at the beginning and end of the summer.

Intra camp games in the evenings give the boys a chance to practice what they have learned.

"We don't keep individual scores in the games," says Foster "because we are not interested in seeing who can score the most points. 'What we are looking for is improvement in the things we are teaching.'"

First Year
The camp, in its first year, has attracted boys from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Delaware and Maryland, in addition to a coaching staff.

A Fundamentalist
Litwack, who developed Rodgers, Bill Mikvy, of Palmerton and Bill (Pickles) Kennedy, who recently signed with the Warriors is a strong believer in basketball fundamentals and the camp is built around the basic parts of the game.

"Every instructor we have here," says Litwack "stresses fundamentals and it shows in their records. They are all winning coaches."

Finals Open In Pocono Mtn. League

WEST End plays host to Kunkletown Sunday in the opening game of a best-of-three series for the Pocono Mountain Baseball League Championship.

West End gained the finals with two straight wins over fourth place Readers and Kunkletown eliminated flag winner Tannersville in straight games.

A protest by Tannersville on the first Kunkletown game was not allowed by the league commissioners.

No Reversal
Tannersville protested that the third base umpire in its 4-3 loss to Kunkletown reversed his decision on a fly ball. The club claimed that the umpire first ruled that a fly ball had not been caught then reversed his decision, saying the ball had been caught.

In talking to the crew of umpires that worked the game, the umpires found that the third base umpire did not reverse his decision but was overruled by the umpire-in-chief.

The second championship game is at BALTIMORE (AP)—Milt Pappas, 21-year-old rocket thrower, moved down the New York Yankees on three singles Friday night in pitching the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-0 victory and within three percentage points of first place.

A roaring crowd of 44,518 acclaimed Pappas' mastery of the Yankees in the first of a three-game series showdown for the American League lead.

Lead-off Yankee batter Tony Kubek collected two of the singles in the first and last innings and Cletis Boyer the other in the seventh.

After Kubek's opening single, Pappas retired the next 18 batters in a row and Kubek was wiped off the bases, too, on a double play.

Boyer was the only runner to reach second, going down on an infield out. Pappas walked none and fanned nine on the way to his third shutout and 13th victory against eight losses.

The Orioles had eight hits, six off an old nemesis, Whitey Ford, in taking their fifth straight game. The Orioles jumped on Ford quickly to score in the first inning on a single by Jackie Brandt and a double by Brooks Robinson.

Lemon Booms Two Homers To Lead Nat Twin Kill

BOSTON (AP) — Washington's Jim Lemon needed just two swings of his home-run bat to sweep a double-header Friday night, beating Boston 5-1 and 3-2.

But the 26,817 fans who put the Red Sox over the million mark in home attendance, went away buzzing about the nerve of the Senators' rookie right-hander Ted Sadowski.

Making his first major league appearance right off the Charles-town farm, Sadowski pitched two-hit shutout ball over the final three innings to preserve the night cap triumph.

Fans Williams
With the poise of a veteran, Sadowski threw a called third strike past Boston pinch-hitter Ted Williams with one on in the ninth.

Nieder Wants Floyd's Crown

ROME (AP)—Bill Nieder, the Olympic shot put champion, Thursday fixed his sights on a new goal—the world heavyweight boxing championship.

"I'm not kidding," the 6-foot-3, 235-pound strong man from Lawrence, Kan., said. "I would like a shot at Floyd Patterson."

"I've achieved everything possible as a shot putter—the Olympic championship, the Olympic record and the world record. Now I'd like to try something else."

Hary Final Meets Great Jesse Owens

ROME (AP) — Armin Hary of Germany made peace with Jesse Owens Friday.

The new sprint king of the Olympics paid a personal call on the Negro hero of the 1936 games, whom he had snubbed three days ago when Owens asked for an interview.

"We thought Hary should go to see Owens," said Gerhard Stock, chief of mission of the German team. "The incident had given the boy a black eye."

"So we asked him to make the visit, and he agreed."

Strange Boy
"He is a strange boy sometimes," said Stock of Hary. "He can be difficult. When Owens asked to meet him, Hary was busy and he said so. I don't think he intended to be rude."

Hary, who Thursday broke America's longtime supremacy in the 100 meters, arrived at the American sector of the Olympic Village with a bouncy step, a camera and a retinue of German companions.

He snapped Jesse's picture and then went over and shook hands. Owens, ignored by Adolf Hitler after winning four gold medals in the Berlin 1936 games, asked an interpreter to pass along his congratulations to the young, crew-cut German.

"You are a great champion," Jesse said. "You have a wonderful start and tremendous speed."

Dear Abby

Reprinted By Request

Editor's Note: Ever since this letter appeared in my column, I have received hundreds of requests for copies of it. No letter has ever provoked more comment. I think it is worth repeating.

ABBY: I am the most heartbroken person on earth. I always found time to go everywhere else but to see my old gray-haired parents. They sat at home alone loving me just the same. It is too late now to give them those few hours of happiness I was too selfish and too busy to give, and now when I go to visit their graves and look at the green grass above them I wonder if God will ever forgive me for the heartaches I must have caused them. I pray that you will print this, Abby, to tell those who still have their parents to visit them and show their love and respect while there is still time. For it is later than you think.

"TOO LATE"

Dear Abby: I have a problem which a lot of girls seem to have. How can you find out which church a boy goes to without coming right out and asking him? I am 18 and my parents don't want me going with boys unless they are the same faith as I am.

PUZZLED

Dear Puzzled: There is nothing wrong with "coming right out" and asking a boy which church he goes to.

If you want a personal reply from Abby, write to her in care of this paper and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. She answers all letters.

Dear Mrs. J. L. T.: It's dandy for children to have pets until the pets start having children. I suggest a miniature or toy poodle. Male.

Dear Abby: Every time my mother-in-law buys a gift for us it's something that was bought on sale and you can't take back. If she had any taste I wouldn't mind, but she has none. She buys things like ash trays, candy dishes and knickknacks that should be put out. If she comes here and doesn't see them, she gets mad and hurt. I've hinted, but she doesn't catch on. What's the best way of solving this problem without making a big deal out of it?

UP AGAINST IT

Dear Up: Put the knickknacks out and forget it. If this is your biggest problem, you're the luckiest woman I heard from today.

Miss McDowell To Help Beaver Frosh Get Started

BEVERLY Gail McDowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Byrd McDowell, of 2124 North Fifth Street, Stroudsburg, will return to Beaver on Sept. 11 for Freshman Week, an orientation period designed to acquaint the new students with the college and its program.

Commissioners Elect Reif

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Edmund H. Reif of Lackawanna County was elected president of the Pennsylvania Assn. of County Commissioners at the group's 74th annual convention yesterday.

He succeeds Norman H. Flores of Lehigh County. Others elected were R. E. Youngquist, of McKean County, first vice president; Peter Yonovich, Berks County, second vice president, and Dee Miller, Indiana County, renamed secretary-treasurer.

Student counselors play an important role in the Freshman Week program. They will welcome the first-year students when they arrive on campus September 12 and will assist them through this carefully planned orientation period.

Serving as student advisers, the student counselors assist the freshmen with their academic and extracurricular programs throughout the year. A limited number of juniors and seniors are elected each year to serve in this capacity. Only outstanding students are selected to receive this honor.

Miss McDowell is a senior at Beaver and is a member of the health and physical education department. She is a graduate of Stroud Union high school.
